

THE PRINCE ALBERT TIMES

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 14, 1883

SOME PLAIN WORDS AND A FAIR OFFER.

That those outside this profession can conduct a newspaper much better than those who are actually engaged in it, is a fact so generally admitted and widely believed that it would be a mere waste of words on our part to attempt to refute it. It is so much easier to be critical than correct. As Publishers of The Times we think the occasion opportune to speak some plain words to our friends and readers, and at the same time to make them a fair proposition. Although we are quite well, as far as this goes, somewhat out of the well beaten track of journalism to take our readers into our confidence, so far as regards the internal conduct of a private office, we are compelled to do so for many reasons. We have from time to time heard, and have had to listen to, comments not always complimentary to our conduct of this journal. As a non-political organ, and one honored by the Settlement of Prince Albert, perhaps we may be thought by those so honoring it that they have a proprietary right in the administration of its affairs. How would a paper conducted by the public at large prosper we would like to ask. It would be confusion were confounded. But because this paper has been bound to the extent of $1,500, of which, by the by, only some $245 have been paid, it must not be concluded that we have risked nothing in the venture. Our knowledge of the craft, our time, our expenses of ourselves and plant in reaching here, to say nothing of what money we ourselves put into the business, should certainly count for something. But that may be considered neither here nor there, although it means a good deal to those who have attempted to give fair value for the assistance we have received in the way of bonuses and subscriptions, and as newspapers go, the North West do not think we have any cause to feel ashamed of our production. Indeed, we have from time to time been gratified by complimentary remarks and cheered on by kind and friendly words. In the newspaper business, above, perhaps, all others, to please the large majority is always the well-attested aim. But to attempt to please everybody would be like a repetition of the old fable of the man and the donkey, and everybody knows the sequel to that fable, the man in attempting to please everybody failed to please anybody. It is exactly the same thing in the newspaper business. If we listened to everybody's advice as to how to run—as the "rankers" say, the paper, we should be precisely in the same plight as the man mentioned in the fable. We would succumb in pleasing nobody, just fancy a merchant or a banker allowing his customers to "run" his business for him; a doctor, his patients; or a lawyer, his clients. It would be no more than a should it not be considered just as absurd in regard to a publisher of a newspaper? The reader object in an article on "Dear Willie" published in the paper, have liked something spiced on Mr. Langley; one complains that there are too many advertisements in the paper; is of the opinion that advertisements would look far better than the usual reading matter; one would like more of a continued story or serial issue, while another would prefer a new short story every week. One would like all the columns filled every week with something about land patents, another declares that he is not interested in land patents but would prefer more foreign news; one reads the local news, and the other, as all birds; one would like to see more about the North West, while another stands up on his hind legs, figuratively speaking of course, and howls like a Manitoba bizard because the mercury is mentioned as falling pretty low in the winter, and another have to work hard to make a home and livelihood. Our late editor was objected to by many because he detailed his varied experiences in "food and field" in reaching the Settlement; because we chose to edit the paper ourselves others take exception. Speculation as to the writer of this article will be indulged in, no doubt, but who matters it. Everybody knows or rather should know that the imprudence of the press must be strictly preserved if it wishes to be of any weight. As long as a paper expresses the sentiments of its readers what difference does it make to whom its articles are written by. We have seen a leader writer given a prolonged space after a spirited article on the temperance question, a writer of morality indulge in the grossest immorality; and we know writers on religious subjects to be of the same persuasion. What weight would such articles carry if the names of the writers were known? Fancy the Toronto Globe or Mail, the New York Herald or the London Times having the name of the writer of each article tacked on to it? But inquisitive people not content to be the juvenile population by any means. And this brings us down to the proposition we desire to make to our friends and readers. To meet their views, to express their opinions, and to conduct the Prince Albert Times according to their views, we shall be happy to publish from one and a half to two columns of editorial matter every week, contributed by themselves, with the understanding, however, that we are relieved from all responsibility by the writer of each editorial attaching his real name to the same. We will set the type, furnish the paper and print it, but their responsibility rests entirely on them. We must have said materials handed in not later than noon on Monday for issue in the next issue. People may take offence at the statement that it doesn't take any time to set the type, read the proofs and correct them, and then print the paper and distribute it. Then, again, if the subscribers were not to have by Monday at noon, we should either have to delay the issue of the paper in order to prepare editorial matter, or else allow the paper to go out without the customary quantity of editorial matter. This latter course would not, we fancy, be pleasing to our readers either. But it would be only leading our readers in the same way as we would be by the proposed leader writers. Looking at the whole matter we do not think it would work satisfactorily. But if there are any who think they can improve upon it, the opportunity is now in their hands. It would be either one or other of two things. If our paper generally is objected to either on the want of talent in the editorial department or in the paucity of its news columns, the remedy can be found if our offer is accepted. We would gladly be relieved of the responsibility. So, however, as we, the publishers of The Times, are responsible for its sayings, and pay all the expenses in connection with the getting out of each copy, we do not see how business it is in particular to meddle with it. But make up your game, gentlemen, make up your minds. There's a lot of fun in it millions in it.

SPINK & MAREY, Publishers.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We have waited till the last moment before going to press, for a copy of Dr. Porter's acquisition, but none has come in. What are we to infer—that there never was a question?

We understand Dr. Porter at the meetings now being held publicly state that we refuse to publish anything, he tries to do so. This is simply untrue. We have told Dr. Porter that our columns are open to him at all times.

Mr. Fitz, Cochran, late editor of The Times, writes a very laconic letter to the Saskatchewan Herald, a small paper published at Battleford, N. W. T., which the Herald with very questionable taste published. Mr. Fitz, Cochran says in his long rambling and gross falsehood and chicanery his statement that "he was compelled to resign, the extremely lucrative position he held in The Times owing to a disagreement with the proprietor." Whether Mr. Fitz, Cochran resigned of his own accord, or whether his service was dispensed with by the proprietor, is a matter of no interest to the public whatever. We have neither the time nor the inclination to bandy compliments with Mr. Fitz, Cochran, but as we persons itching for an explanation of his severance with The Times, and to correct some of Mr. Fitz, Cochran's untruths we would merely say that Mr. Fitz, Cochran severed his connection with The Times, and threw up his lucrative position thereon, on account of his mode of life and irregular habits (he put it mildly), which had already made him a laughing stock for the public, although that would have mattered nothing if it had not been heaped on the paper, and much injury and pecuniary loss caused to us by the irregular habits to which we have been very reluctantly compelled to allude. The Herald was kind enough to publish Mr. Fitz, Cochran's letter, but it is equally obliging by publishing this explanation. We would in all kindness advise Mr. Fitz, Cochran to be content with this explanation, and suggest that for the future he keep himself in the background, and let his conduct speak for itself in regard to its abasement and editorial manner, on all occasions, towards our friends. We thank Mr. Fitz, Cochran's advice to go to the devil, and thank Mr. Fitz, Cochran for the quiet he keeps himself in the background will be for his comfort. "We are speaking in regard to its abasement and editorial manner, on all occasions, towards our friends. We thank Mr. Fitz, Cochran's advice to go to the devil, and thank Mr. Fitz, Cochran for the quiet he keeps himself in the background will be for his comfort."

RIVER STREET.

A month's work done, John comes to town.
To buy a suit of clothes,
He would not take a friend's advice,
Who to the Horse Shoe goes:
But went into another store,
And twenty dollars paid,
To get a suit of shoddy clothes,
That frightful had were made.
Follow this advice. Do not pay $20 for a suit of clothes you can get for $13.
His friend went to the Horse Shoe Store,
And paid his thirteen dollars,
He came out in a well made suit,
Boiled shirt and stand-up collar.
But John, his clothing soon played out,
He soon shall want some more,
The next time that he strikes the town
He'll go to the Horse Shoe Store.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A GOOD IDEA.

To the Editor of the Times.

Sir, Having a perfect knowledge of the liberal and generous spirit of the inhabitants of Prince Albert Settlement in all enterprises generally, I hope to obtain from them a welcome hearing for the project I have now. I propose to build here, at Prince Albert, next summer a convent and church. An institution such as I propose to establish here will be a great boon for the people of Prince Albert, besides being a credit and an ornament to the place. It is my intention to establish a high school for young ladies, which school will not be inferior to any in the Dominion of Canada. Five nuns for that purpose are to sail in the spring from Liverpool bound for this place. To fit out such an institution requires money and I hope the generous people of Prince Albert will lend me a helping hand in my undertaking. The school will be open to all girls without distinction of creed. It is upon the expressed desire of many gentlemen of Prince Albert, and knowing their ready disposition to welcome among them such an institution, that I have for a long time entrusted Bishop Grandin to found here a convent for the education of young ladies, and the good Bishop has at last complied with my wishes and has announced to me by last mail that five nuns will arrive at Prince Albert by next summer. Now, Sir, Editor, I trust you will do all in your power to bring this important subject before the public in such a way as will tend materially to its successful accomplishment. Any assistance no matter how small will be thankfully and gratefully acknowledged through the columns of your paper. I have undertaken a grave responsibility and a heavy charge, but I feel certain that an institution of this nature will tend materially to advance the true interests of the place, and go far to place Prince Albert on that proud eminence which sooner or later will make it the first city of the North West Territory.

A. ANDRE.

The ratio of divorces to marriages in the State of Maine during the past five years is one in ten; and as many of the judicial separations were granted on the ground of drunkenness, it would seem as if there were something wrong about the prohibition law.

Amongst the applications to Parliament for new railway charters are to be found one for a line to be called "The Great Northwestern Railway of Canada," and another to be known as "The F. & N. Railroad and North Eastern Railway." The route of the former will be some some point on the Canadian Pacific Railway between Swift Current and Medicine Hat, and running thence a north-westerly direction crossing the North Saskatchewan River at Edmonton or some point to the east thereof, and continuing in the same general direction to the Peace River, at the mouth of the Smoky River or at some point further down the said Peace River; with power also to build and operate a branch line of this railway to connect with the navigable waters of the Athabasca River. The latter will be from some point at or near Fort McLeod, in the North West Territory, in a north-westerly direction to a point at or near the intersection of the Canadian Pacific Railway by parallel of longitude of 111° with power to extend said line of railway in a north-westerly direction to a point at or near the town of Battleford, in the North West Territory, and with power to construct, maintain, and operate in connection therewith a line of telegraph.

OF

LORNE

GENTLEMEN:

I have been requested by a number of friends to offer myself as a Candidate for the coming Election. I beg respectfully to announce that it is my intention to come out, and if returned, I pledge myself to do all in my power to further the interests of Prince Albert and vicinity.

I remain, gentlemen,

your obedient servant,

A. E. POTTER, M.D.

Notice to Creditors.

In the Goods of Charles Alexander Fiddler, deceased.

Notice is hereby given that all creditors and others having claims against Charles Alexander Fiddler, late of the settlement of Prince Albert, in the North West Territories of Canada, residing here on or about the second day of February, A.D. 1892, are to send by post, prepaid, to Messrs. McLennan & Watson, of Prince Albert, North West Territories, Solicitors for Thomas McKay, Administrator with the will annexed of the Estate of the late Charles Alexander Fiddler, on or before the THIRTY-FIRST DAY OF MARCH, A.D. 1893, a statement containing their names and addresses and full particulars of their claims and the security if any held by them and after the last mentioned date the said administrator will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased amongst the parties entitled thereto, regard being had only to the claims of which notice has been given as above required and the said administrator will not be liable for and answer or any part thereof to any person or persons of whose claims notice shall not have been received.

THOMAS MCKAY, Administrator,
